Monthly Comment

ELEVA European Selection was up 4.35% vs an index up 4.04%, an outperformance of 31 bps.

Sector allocation had a slightly negative impact, affected by the overweight in information technology, the underweight in energy, and the overweight in consumer discretionary, but was somewhat compensated by the positive impact of consumer staples, materials, and communication services. Stock picking was positive, particularly in financials, health care, and consumer staples. Banks had a strong performance, driven by positive outlooks, with resilient net interest income and improving fee-related revenues at a time of low valuation, in our view. BBVA and Unicredit outperformed. 3i group had a well-received Capital Markets Day for their flagship discounter Action group, that had a very strong start to the year. Cyclical continue to be in favour, and Stellantis announced a buyback and a better than expected outlook for 2024.

On the other hand, BE Semiconductor was affected by a decision by some clients to postpone their new generation of investments in hybrid bonding. Siemens and Deutsche Post warned investors of a relatively slow start to the year, with improvements expected in the second half of 2024.

Economic growth was uneven in 2023, with low growth in Europe and in China balanced by an acceleration in the US and good developments elsewhere. Falling inflation expectations reduce the risk of a Central Bank mistake. European macroeconomic surprises are now improving, leading the way to a more synchronized upturn. In that environment, we believe that corporates will still be able to grow at a moderate pace. Value was increased to 54.8%, and cyclicals remain high at 72.1% of the fund.

Since inception, ELEVA European Selection is up 115.59% vs an index up 74.91%, an outperformance of 4,068 bps.
