Risk and reward profile

1	2	3	4	5	6	7
---	---	---	---	---	---	---

- The value of an investment in a sub-fund increases or decreases over time. At the time of resale, the price of your shares may be less than the original price, representing a loss. If you invest in a sub-fund, the currency of which is different from your own, exchange-rate fluctuations can also reduce your gains or increase your losses.
- The above risk level is calculated on the basis of the sub-fund's volatility over the medium term (i.e. on the basis of actual changes in its value over the last five years or on a simulation, if the sub-fund was created within that period). The volatility of the sub-fund may increase or decrease over time, which may change its risk level.
- The sub-fund's risk level reflects the following factor(s):
 - Equity investments have greater volatility and higher risk than investments in bonds and money market instruments.

The risk level does not reflect the potential impact of unusual market conditions or unforeseen events that may increase risk or trigger other risks such as:

- Credit risk Bonds may become worthless if the issuer (a commercial company or government) is unable to repay its debt within the agreed time frame.
- Liquidity risk Some financial securities may be impossible to sell quickly at a given time or may have to be sold at a discount.
- Management risk Under abnormal market conditions, the usual management techniques may be ineffective or unfavourable.
- Derivative risk Some derivatives may increase the volatility of the sub-fund or expose the sub-fund to losses that are higher than the price of these derivatives.
- Counterparty risk The sub-fund may lose money as a result of the failure of a market player with which it does business.
- Risk associated with Chinese A-shares The Sub-fund may invest in Chinese A-shares through the Shanghai-Hong Kong Stock Connect programme, which is likely to result in additional clearing and settlement risks as well as regulatory, operational and counterparty risks. Investors are advised to refer to the prospectus for further information about the risks.
